THE MANAGER

Morgan led the Red Sox in 1990 to their second Eastern Division title in three years and third in the last five. He successfully juggled 24 position players plus 20 pitchers as the Red Sox overcame Toronto in late June then battled the Blue Jays until the final night win against the White Sox, Oct. 3, clinched first place. The Sox were never lower than third (May 30 the last time) and their biggest deficit was three games out three times, May 8 the last time. They were first from July 31 until Sept. 19, tied Toronto Sept. 27 then took the lead for good the next night in the key Fenway series with the Blue Jays. The biggest lead was 6 1/2 games Aug. 30 through Sept. 4.

In May the Sox got their first winning west coast trip (5-4) since 1986, and on May 24 Morgan's contract was extended through 1991. Through 1990 Morgan had a 217-184 .541 major league record. He received the Judge Emil Fuchs Memorial Award for long and meritorious service to baseball Jan. 10, 1991 from the Boston Baseball Writers Association.

Joe's first full season as Red Sox manager in 1989 was injury-marred. Until May 21 the Red Sox either had sole possession or were tied for first 20 times. They fell off in June and July but came back to within a game of the Orioles Aug. 1, and 1.5 games behind the O's Aug. 12. Those were the high points of the second half as Morgan was forced to continually juggle his rotation and starting lineup due to a persistent string of injuries.

On June 15 the Red Sox extended Morgan's contract through the 1990 season. He also was a coach for the A.L. All-Star team that defeated the N.L., 5-3, in Anaheim, and in June was given the Boston Press Photographers' Association Sports Personality Award for 1989.

On July 14, 1988 Morgan became the 37th manager of the Red Sox when he replaced John McNamara as interim manager with the team tied for fourth place, 9 games behind Detroit, with a 43-42 record.

JOSEPH MICHAEL (JOE) MORGAN #35

Age: 60; Born: November 19, 1930, Walpole, MA. Ht.: 5-10; Wt.: 180. Green eyes, Brown hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: Walpole, MA. Married: Dottie Glebus. Children: Cathy 10/15/58, Joe Jr. 7/17/63, Bill 7/7/64, Barbara 12/23/66.

The rest of the season became known as "Morgan's Magic" as the Red Sox swept an 11-game homestand, won 12 straight and 19 of 20 to move into a first place tie with the Tigers. During the surge Joe was named manager for the rest of 1988 on July 20, and then manager through 1989 on August 3.

The Red Sox were second throughout August, again moved into a tie for first with the Tigers September 4, and took over first for good September 5. The lead was as much as 6 games September 18. Despite losing 6 of the last 7 games, the Red Sox clinched their second Eastern Division title in three years September 30.

Morgan compiled a 46-31 .597 record and guided the Red Sox to 19 straight Fenway Park wins as part of a 24-game home victory string that set a new A.L. record. The Red Sox lost four straight to Oakland in the ALCS including two games by one run in Fenway. Morgan was named the A.L. Manager of the Year by U.P.I. and runner-up to Tony LaRussa by the Baseball Writers.

In 1974 Morgan joined the Red Sox organization and managed AAA Pawtucket from 1974-82. He spent two years as a scout and then joined McNamara's staff as first base coach in 1985. He was the bullpen coach in 1986, then took over the third base duties in 1987. Before joining the Red Sox he managed in the Pittsburgh system from 1966-73, except for 1972 when he was a major league coach with the Pirates. He won manager of the year honors in 1966-69-73-77.

Joe is a graduate of Walpole (MA) High School and Boston College (1953) and was a standout baseball and hockey player. He signed with the Boston Braves organization in 1952 and spent 15 seasons as a minor league infielder-outfielder with three .300 seasons. He had short stints in the majors with the Milwaukee Braves and K.C. A's in 1959, Philadelphia and Cleveland in 1960, Cleveland in 1961 and St. Louis in 1964.

Age: 44; Born: April 21, 1947, Fredericksburg, VA. Ht.: 5-8; Wt.: 175. Brown eyes. Black Hair. Bats Left; Throws: Right. Home: Lutherville, MD.

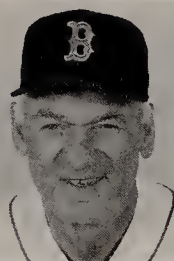

Bumbry is the Red Sox first base coach for the fourth year. He also assists in outfield defensive fundamentals and baserunning instruction. Al was promoted to the major league club in 1988 after spending two seasons as the organization's minor league outfield and baserunning coach. He has been involved in area youth clinics and visited several neighboring playgrounds on behalf of our Sox Talk program. During the 1989-90 off-season he played centerfield for the Winter Haven Super Sox in the Senior Professional Baseball Association.

Bumbry was named a Red Sox minor league coach specializing in outfield play and baserunning in January 1986. He ended a 13-year M.L. career in 1985. Bumbry spent 12 seasons with Baltimore, then finished in 1985 with San Diego where he hit .200 (19-95) in 68 games.

Al had a .281 career avg. (1,422-5,053) in 1,496 games with 254 stolen bases. He holds the Orioles career stolen base record (252) and is 6th on their all-time hit list (1,403). Al won the A.L. Rookie of the Year Award in 1973. In 1980 he became the 1st Oriole to have 200 hits in a season. Al served 11 months in Vietnam as a platoon leader, earned a Bronze Star and was discharged as a 1st lieutenant in May 1971. He is very active in numerous charities in the Maryland area. In 1987 Bumbry was inducted into the Baltimore Orioles' Hall of Fame.

Age: 60; Born: October 11, 1930, Wausau, WI. Ht.: 6-0; Wt.: 210. Blue eyes, Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Council Bluffs, IA. Married: Valeria Hager.

In 1990 Bill Fischer was a very active pitching coach as the Red Sox used 20 hurlers including 12 different starters. Yet, the Sox staff compiled a 3.72 ERA (4th best in the A.L.), their best since a 3.54 ERA in 1978. They also led the major leagues in fewest home runs allowed, 92 (the least by a Sox staff, not counting 1981, since they surrendered 92 in 1953 and 82 in 1949). The Sox tied for 2nd with 13 shutouts and tied for 3rd with 997 strikeouts (after 4 straight years of 1,000 strikeouts). In 1990 he also coordinated baseball clinics for area youth for the third year in conjunction with the Red Sox NESN Cable TV outlet.

Fischer's 1989 Sox staff had 1,054 strikeouts to rank 2nd in the A.L. and 4th in the majors. It was the 8th time (4th straight year) a Sox staff recorded 1,000 strikeouts. After the season Bill spent several weeks as a special pitching instructor with the Orix Braves of the Japanese Pacific League.

At the end of the 1988 season Fischer was selected by the BoSox Club as the Red Sox Man of the Year for his cooperation in community endeavors and contributions to the success of the team. He is the only non-player to win the award.

Bill joined the Red Sox as John McNamara's pitching coach in 1985 from Kansas City where he had been a minor league pitching instructor in 1984. Prior to that assignment he was the pitching coach for Cincinnati where he worked with McNamara from 1979-82 and with Russ Nixon in 1983.

Fischer was signed by the Chicago White Sox in 1948. His pitching career lasted 20 years, which included nine seasons in the major leagues. Besides the White Sox he also pitched for Detroit, Washington, the Kansas City A's and Minnesota. Bill served in the Marine Corps for two years (1952-54).

Fischer is known for his outstanding ability to throw strikes. He holds the major league record for the most consecutive innings without giving up a base on balls, 84.1 Aug. 3-Sept. 30, 1962. In 1965 he pitched a 1-0 shutout for Indianapolis in which 70 of his 90 pitches were strikes.

Bill was a scout for the new Kansas City Royals from 1969-74 and was their minor league pitching instructor from 1975-78. After his stint in Cincinnati he returned to the Royals in 1984 serving in the same capacity as he did when he left. In 1976 he received the Ewing M. Kauffman Award for his outstanding contribution to the Kansas City organization.

#33

Age: 54; Born: July 2, 1937, Cambridge, MA. Ht.: 6-1; Wt.: 190. Brown eyes. Black Hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Waltham, MA. Married: Kathy McGowan. Children: Steve 8/25/62, Rick 6/19/64.

After two years as the Red Sox bullpen coach, Dick was named third base coach last fall by Manager Joe Morgan. He became the fifth Sox third base coach since 1976.

The 1989 season was Berardino's first major league year, and that May he was inducted into the Holy Cross Athletic Hall of Fame. He has been involved in many clinics and charitable functions during his three major league seasons.

In 1988 Berardino was named manager of the year by the Carolina L. and overall Class A manager of the year by Baseball America. His Lynchburg Red Sox overcame a 25-45 first half to finish 43-27 in the second half to win the Northern Division's second half by one game. The L-Sox then eliminated defending champion Salem two games to one in the semi-finals before losing to Kinston in the finale of a five-game series for the championship.

Dick graduated from Watertown (MA) High School in 1955 and Holy Cross College in 1959. A three-sport star in high school, he played football and baseball at Holy Cross and led the Crusaders to the 1958 NCAA District One title. He hit .378 as a rookie at Modesto in the California L. in 1958 after signing with the Yankees. In 1961 he was a Texas L. All-Star hitting .301 with 20 HR and 93 RBI for Amarillo. He spent 8 seasons as a minor league outfielder then began a managerial career in 1966 with the Sarasota Yankees in the Gulf Coast L. He joined the Red Sox system as a coach at Jamestown, NY (NYPL) in 1968 and became a manager for Boston at Williamsport in 1971-72 and then Elmira in 1973-85. He coached at Pawtucket in 1986 then moved back to the managerial ranks at Greensboro (SAL) in 1987.

Age: 39, Turns 40 Sept. 29; Born: September 29, 1951, Galveston, TX. Ht.: 6-0; Wt.: 200. Green eyes. Brown hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Sugarland, TX. Married: Ann Strain.

John was named Red Sox bullpen coach November 14 after being the third base coach for the Toronto Blue Jays the previous five years.

He played professionally as a catcher in the Houston organization (a 7th round June draft pick) from 1970-76 and hit a home run in his first pro game in June 1970 at Covington (Appal. L.). He led Southern L. catchers with a .982 fielding pct. in 1973, but his best overall season was in 1971 with Sumter of the W. Carolina L. John was first in putouts and assists and hit .269 with 13 HR and 46 RBI in 108 games.

In 1977 McLaren became a coach with Utica (A) of the NYPL. and in 1978 made his managerial debut with Medicine Hat (Rookie L.) in the Toronto system. He led Kinston (A) to the Carolina L. 1st half title in 1981 and did the same with Knoxville (AA) of the Southern L. in 1984 (1st half) and 1985 (2nd half). He was Co-Manager of the Year in the Southern L. in 1985 and managed winter ball for Willard in the Colombian L. in 1981-82. John also managed winter ball for Lara in Venezuela and was the All-Star manager in 1987. He helped coach Canada's National team in 1977.

McLaren graduated from Houston's Westbury H.S. in 1970 and attended Blinn J.C., St. Thomas U. and Houston Baptist U.

(RICHIE)
HEBNER #32

Age: 43; Born: November 26, 1947, Norwood, MA. Ht.: 6-1; Wt.: 200. Green eyes. Brown hair. Bats: Left; Throws: Right. Home: Walpole, MA. Married: Patricia Downing. Children: Elizabeth 11/29/82, Katherine 2/24/85, Joseph 9/16/88.

Hebner is in his third season as the Red Sox hitting coach. Despite the falloff in offensive production throughout the major leagues in 1990, the Red Sox still topped all clubs in batting average (.272) and on-base pct. (.344) while ranking 2nd in the majors in doubles (298) and 3rd in least strikeouts (795).

The long-time (1968-85) major league standout returned home in 1989 as the Red Sox hitting coach. Red Sox batters responded by leading the major leagues in 10 different hitting categories including batting average (.277), runs (774), slugging pct. (.403), walks (643) and on-base pct. (.351).

Hebner joined Joe Morgan's staff after the 1988 season when he was the Manager of the Year in the Class A South Atlantic L. at Myrtle Beach in the Toronto organization. The Walpole, MA resident led Myrtle Beach to an 83-56 .597 record (2nd best in the SAL) including the first-half title at 46-24. They were eliminated in the SAL semi-finals two games to one by Charleston, SC.

Richie was an outstanding athlete at Norwood (MA) High School and turned down professional hockey offers to sign a bonus contract with Pittsburgh after being the Pirates' top choice (15th player chosen) in the 1966 June draft. He had an 18-year major league career with Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Detroit, the New York Mets and the Chicago Cubs, and compiled a .276 average with 203 HR and 890 RBI in 1,908 games.

Hebner hit .300 four times in the majors and reached the .290's three times. He hit 10 or more HR 10 times with highs of 25 in 1973 and 19 in 1972. Although primarily a third baseman, he also played first and second base and the outfield. He played in 8 LCS (5 with Pitts., 2 with Phil. plus the Cubs in '84). In the 1971 World Series he was 2-12 in 3 games with one HR. He retired after playing for the Cubs in 1985.

Ted Williams' 1941 Season

a game-by-game recap

Season of Glory, A Day by Day Record of Ted Williams' .406 Season. Compiled by Harold Kaese, edited by Dick Johnson & Mark Schreve from Ted Williams, A Portrait in Words & Pictures

In the six decades since Ted Williams batted .406 not only has no hitter surpassed the .400 mark, but no hitter has come close to duplicating his feat of batting for both average and power. Even the great Ty Cobb was moved to remark that he felt Williams was a better hitter than himself and therefore deserved the mantle of baseball's greatest hitter.

The following day-by-day account of Williams' 1941 season was compiled by the late Harold Kaese of The Boston Globe. Kaese was Williams' Boswell, chronicling his every achievement both in prose and statistical charts. No writer, before or since, has better captured the career of a ballplayer.

THE NATIONAL GUARD PRESENTS AMERICA'S BEST

Major League Baseball's connection to the armed forces is well documented in the annals of sports history. Whether it's Hank Greenberg, who was the first athlete to volunteer for service in World War II, or Ted Williams, who lost almost five seasons in his prime due to his Air Force commitments in World War II and the Korean War, baseball has a long and proud tradition of service to the country.

However, there are athletes in other sports who have shared this commitment to their country who do not get the recognition as these Hall of Famers. One of those is Willie Davenport.

Based simply on his athletic achievement, Davenport should be a household name. A five-time Olympian, he first competed as a hurdler in the Tokyo games in 1964 and finished his Olympic career as a member of the four-man bobsled team in the 1980 Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, New York, thus becoming the first black athlete on a U.S. Winter Olympic Team.

Davenport won the gold medal and set a new world record in the 110 meter high hurdles in Mexico City in 1968. He finished fourth in Munich in 1972. In 1976 in Montreal, Davenport defied his doctors — who said he'd never compete again after suffering from a torn tendon in his knee and a blood clot in his lung — to not only make the Olympic team but earn a bronze medal, at the age of 33. At the conclusion of the games in Montreal, Davenport's achievements and commitment to his team was recognized by his teammates as they bestowed him the honor of carrying the American flag during the closing ceremonies.

It could not have been a more fitting choice. For unknown to most of his Olympic teammates, and especially unknown to the legions of track and field fans around the world, Davenport had "carried the flag" for his country after college as an Army enlisted man in Germany. Furthermore, at the conclusion of his athletic career, after the United States boycott of the 1980 Olympics in Russia, Davenport joined the Louisiana National Guard in 1981.

Since joining the National Guard, Davenport has become a shining example for athletes, and Americans, due to his allegiance to his country. His National Guard service has included work in the Public Affairs and Communications departments, and he has also served as a Company Commander of the 769th Engineer Battalion.

After being promoted to Major in 1987, Davenport returned to his alma mater as an Assistant Professor of Military Science at Southern University in Baton Rouge, LA. Presently he serves as the Operations Officer of the Advertising Branch at the National Guard Headquarters in Falls Church, VA.

This current job comes easy for Davenport, who is responsible for recruitment advertising for the various branches of the Guard. "My travels as an athlete made me realize how lucky I am to be an American," Davenport says. "I will always strive to protect the American way of life, and to represent America in the best possible manner."

What could your teenager possibly have in common with 18 of America's greatest leaders?

Few people realize that 18 National Guardmembers grew up to be presidents of the United States. That includes Washington, Lincoln and Truman.

Not everyone wants to be president, but the Army National Guard can help any young adult be more successful. No matter what his or her dreams are.

Serving as little as two days a month and two weeks a year can benefit your son or daughter in ways no other part-time job can.

We offer a good salary, tuition assistance through the Montgomery GI Bill, and on-the-job training in fields most people don't even know exist.

The Army National Guard can teach your teenager how to be a leader. We'll show him or her the importance of teamwork and how to develop the self-confidence needed to succeed in today's world.

To find out more about your local Army National Guard send us this coupon. We'll send your son or daughter information about joining the ranks of some of America's greatest leaders.

Ken Brett

Wore No. 36, 1967;
No. 42, 1969;
No. 18, 1970-71

by Dick Dew

THEN: He blew into Boston during the late stages of the madness that was the 1967 season, a bonus baby as a California schoolboy, and the youngest player to pitch in a World Series game at 19 years, 20 days. He was also a pitcher who set a major league record for hitting home runs in four consecutive games in 1973.

Ken Brett, an older brother of Kansas City's George Brett, started out at Fenway Park by working a successful inning and a third in game four of the World Series against the Cardinals. He now visits Boston on a regular basis in the role of a California Angel television broadcaster who retired in 1981 after 11 seasons in the majors.

"The Red Sox traded me away in 1971 because I did not mature fast enough," Brett says in all honesty 20 years after he made it to Boston. "I just didn't give them what they wanted from me," he said of a career that began with seven seasons in the Boston system and was interrupted when he went to the Brewers as part of a 10-player deal.

"I place most of the blame on myself. I was not a bad person, I liked it in Boston, but I didn't settle down, and they thought I was a little wild, not as a person but as a pitcher.

"Everybody was good to me, Dick Williams, Eddie Popowski and the other players, but I was not a full-fledged member of the team when I was brought up. I came up late in the year, I had not even been to spring training with them. They'd heard about me but never seen me."

Ken went on to play for the Brewers, Phillies, Pirates, Yankees, White Sox, Angels, Twins, Dodgers and Royals, calling it a playing career after being released by Kansas City following the 1981 season.

He had lifetime records of 83 wins and 85 losses (39-26 in the National League) and a career 3.93 ERA, again better in the N.L. where he was 3.38.

Ken Brett

NOW: "I hung in there for 11 years and looking back, I'm satisfied with my career. I had a lot of talent when I was 19 years old, but I was a thrower when I came up, and I had to become more of a pitcher to prevail, to stay around that long. "I think my high point was in Pittsburgh when I was chosen for the All-Star team in 1974. I think I was 9-5 at the break, and I threw pretty well. I'd gone 10-5 at the break in Philadelphia the year before and thought I had a shot at it then. "And I got a break in that game. I was the right guy in the right place at the right time," Brett said of the fact that he emerged as the winning pitcher in the 1974 All-Star Game in which he gave up a hit and a walk but no runs in the two innings of relief that he worked. "I have my World Series ring from 1967 and my All-Star ring from 1974, and I wear the All-Star ring more for obvious reasons."

Brett, a southpaw, admits "My arm was never really the same after I had elbow surgery, and I decided at age 33 that was enough, I could throw but not a lot. I was working out of the bullpen and I wanted to play, but I couldn't do it. "I took a year off after I retired. I was still single and I had taken care of my money. I got a job in the printing business in 1983 and worked on and off as a printing salesman for four or five years.

"That's when grim reality set in, I was stuck in Los Angeles traffic every day. When a Miller Lite commercial came up, I applied for an audition, flew to New York and got a spot on the commercial.

"I was offered a job managing Utica, N.Y. as an independent rookie team in the summer of 1985. I did it, but I decided it wasn't for me. No, it's not true that I had to drive the bus."

In 1986, Brett heard about a television baseball job in Seattle, applied, and got the spot as color commentator, working the printing business in the off-season. A year later, he heard of an opening on the Angels' radio affiliate, did some color analysis for TV as well and took over this year as color man on the Angels' television affiliate.

MEMORIES: Brett, who signed for a reported $85,000 bonus after being drafted in the fourth round by the Red Sox in 1966, actually spent several years living in Boston during the winters and studying part-time at Boston University in the 1970s. "When I needed surgery on my shoulder, I dropped out," he recalls. "But I enjoyed Boston and school very much, made some great friends there, and still see some of them when I visit now, nearly 20 years later. "I liked the fans in Boston. They might have been a little rough on me in my second year but I deserved it. I just tried to block it out," he said of a

A TED WILLIAMS SCRAPBOOK

(Part Two)

by Dick Johnson

Compiled from Ted Williams, A Portrait in Words and Pictures by Dick Johnson and Glenn Stout, Walker & Company. 1991.

The heroic nature of Ted Williams' life and baseball career only grows in stature as the years pass. Not only is he generally acknowledged as the greatest hitter in baseball history, but he also gained glory on the battlefields of Korea, and continues to pursue fish with a characteristic single-mindedness which has made him one of the world's most celebrated fishermen.

He was one of those rare athletes who made each game a performance. During the years that the Red Sox fielded less than competitive teams, Williams filled Fenway and led fans to utter the familiar refrain,

Jeff Reardon

Seems like every good stopper should have a nickname, doesn't it?

The Monster. The Terminator. Steamer. Goose. The Mad Hungarian. The Adjuster.

The Adjuster?

Sounds like someone from Allstate. But what else might you call Red Sox stopper Jeff Reardon, who has very efficiently made the transition from flamethrower to finesse, from overpower to out-think, on the way to becoming one of the best closers to ever play the game.

"What makes Reardon so good?" pondered Boston manager Joe Morgan, characteristically answering one question with another. "Two things. He knows how to pitch. And he knows how to win."

Earlier this season, Reardon passed the 300-save plateau, becoming merely the fourth pitcher to do so, joining Rollie Fingers, Rich Gossage and Bruce Sutter. Ex-Red Sox Lee Smith should join the club soon, leaving him, Gossage and Reardon to pursue Fingers' record 341 saves.

Gossage is being used mostly as a setup man in Texas, and Reardon has a pretty good head start on Smith. The timetable says that at his current pace, Reardon should be slipping past Fingers right about this time next season.

"It's real important to me," is Reardon's approach as the record looms. "I'm not worried about it this year, because realistically there's no way I can do it. When I think of passing Rollie and others I've passed along the way, it's something I'm pretty proud of because there are some great relievers there."

Three hundred saves hasn't yet gained the notoriety of 300 wins as evidenced by the low-key publicity surrounding Reardon's 300th. Some of that has to do with the newness of the milestone. Some has to do with Reardon's style. The Red Sox, however, did honor Reardon with an on-field presentation following his achievement.

He's Maple Street, USA, not Broadway, a product of the working-class Massachusetts town of Dalton. Consistency, not flamboyance, has been the Reardon trademark.

"The most important thing about (achieving 300 saves) is that it's a mark of consistency, of doing the job day-in and day-out. For me, and I think it's the same for any reliever, that's what matters," Gossage said.

ROLLIE FINGERS

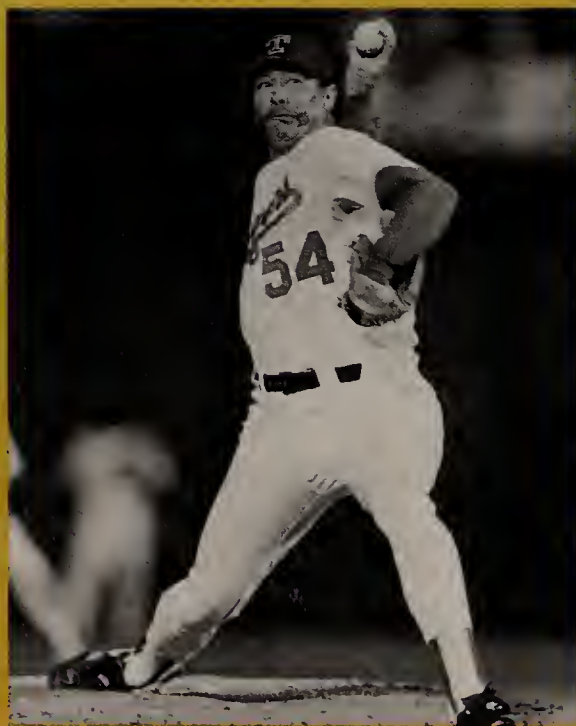

Even though he's the all-time leader in the points standings kept by Roloids, he's only won one seasonal Roloids title. And even though no reliever has reached 300 as fast as Reardon, he's only led the league in saves once — 1985, when he had 41 for the Expos.

But nobody's ever saved at least 20 games a year for 10 straight seasons as Reardon has, and it's that kind of year-in, year-out production that has him looking past Fingers to the 400-save mark.

"I've thought about it," Reardon said, "and I think it can be done. I think I can pitch another five years (he's 35) and that puts it in reach." Gossage commented, "400 saves would be an incredible accomplishment. I don't know if it can be done, but if anyone can do it, it's Jeff."

Not bad stuff for a pitcher not even drafted, but signed by the Mets as a free agent out of UMass. Reardon began his pro career as a fireballing starter but was switched to the bullpen by the Mets in Triple A. It was the first of many adjustments he made successfully.

GOOSE GOSSAGE

"Being a starter helped me a lot. Even though I could throw hard. I had to learn to mix it up. That's why I'm not a one-pitch pitcher. Guys like that have one or two big years, then it catches up with them."

Reardon can still throw hard, especially in big games. Just ask the batters who faced him during the last week of the season last year. But it's variety, not velocity that gets people out most of the time.

"He's got two different fastballs," said Morgan. "He'll throw one at you and whoa, it's got plenty of pop. Next pitch looks like exactly the same fastball, but it's a little slower. Then he'll work you high, and if you don't go after it, here it comes at the knees. And he's got the sidearm curve he uses on right-handed hitters. . . he's just tough."

In more ways than one, as evidenced by his return from what the medical profession said was season-ending back surgery last summer. When Reardon asked his doctors when he'd pitch again, they smiled and said, "wait till

and Bob Starr

Red Sox fans will once again receive full coverage of the team on both radio and television in 1991 via one of the most extensive broadcast schedules in the major leagues.

The Red Sox Radio Network will carry every game, with Bob Starr and Joe Castiglione handling the play-by-play. WRKO-AM in Boston is the flagship station of a network of 63 stations which blankets New England.

Castiglione is in his ninth season on Red Sox radio. He had previously covered the Cleveland Indians (1979-80-82) on both radio and TV. He also broadcast the Milwaukee Brewers on cable in 1981.

The Hamden, Conn., native has also announced the Cleveland Cavaliers (NBA) on cable, and he did college basketball on New England Sports Network for six winters. Joe has also taught a broadcast journalism course at Northeastern University for several years.

Starr returned to Boston last season after a 20-year hiatus. He had been the sports anchor at WBZ-TV (1966-69), as well as doing radio play-by-play work for Boston College football and the Patriots.

Ned Martin and Jerry Remy

Hector Martinez
and
Bobby Serrano

Prior to last season, he was the television voice of the California Angels for nine seasons, and his baseball broadcasting resume includes the San Francisco Giants and St. Louis Cardinals as well.

In addition, he has broadcast pro football for the Los Angeles Rams, San Francisco 49ers, St. Louis Cardinals, and Patriots, and he has called the play-by-play for numerous NFL championships. He has also done college football and

and

basketball for the University of Missouri, Illinois State, Bradley, and Illinois Wesleyan, and football for UCLA and BC.

The Red Sox also began radio broadcasts in Spanish last season. WROL-AM in Boston is the flagship of Carter Radio Network's five stations (also Hartford, Lawrence, Providence, and Springfield). Once again, all weeknight home games will be carried. Hector Martinez and Bobby Serrano, both natives of Puerto Rico, will return as the broadcasters.

Every Red Sox game will also be shown on television this season, with TV-38 carrying 75 games and New England Sports Network (NESN) showing 82 on cable. CBS will have the Red Sox on national TV four times, while ESPN will show three games on their Sunday night national broadcasts.

TV-38, along with its New England network, is in its 17th season of Red Sox coverage, with Sean McDonough and Bob Montgomery together for their fourth season.

The versatile McDonough, in his fourth year as play-by-play man for the Red Sox, has been quite visible around the Boston sports scene for a number of years. He announced Hockey East games for NESN and TV-38 for six winters, and he broadcast Ivy League football on PBS and ESPN for five years. This past off-season found him on ESPN extensively, doing both college football and basketball.

It's Easy to Keep Score

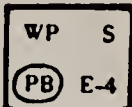

Baseball Shorthand, as used by the news media to render every game more enjoyable to baseball enthusiasts. All players are numbered and all plays recorded by symbols. For symbols and example of system, see below.

CODE NUMBER OF PLAYERS AS FOLLOWS

Pitcher	1	Second Baseman	4	Left Fielder	7
Catcher	2	Third Baseman	5	Center Fielder	8
First Baseman	3	Shortstop	6	Right Fielder	9

SYMBOLS FOR PLAYS

Single	—	Fielder's Choice	FC	Passed Ball	PB
Double	=	Hit by Pitcher	HP	Balk	BK
Triple	≡	Wild Pitch	WP	Struck Out	K
Home Run	≡≡	Stolen Base	SB	Base on Balls	BB
Reached base on error	E	Sacrifice	SAC	Force Out	FO

The lower lefthand corner of the scoring block should be considered as home plate. Progress is counter-clockwise with progress to first base indicated in lower righthand corner, to second in upper righthand corner, to third in upper lefthand corner and to home in lower left. In example to left, batter reached first on an error by the second baseman, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball. It is convenient to encircle all runs as shown so that scoring plays may be seen at a glance.

FENWAY PARK GROUND RULES

- Foul poles, screen poles and screen on top of left field fence are outside of playing field.
- Ball going through scoreboard, either on the bound or fly: 2 Bases.
- Fly ball striking left center field wall to right of line behind flag pole: Home Run.
- Fly ball striking wall or flag pole and bounding into bleachers: Home Run.
- Fly ball striking line or right of same on wall in right center: Home Run.
- Fly ball striking wall left of line and bounding into bullpen: Home Run.
- Ball sticking in bullpen screen: 2 Bases.
- Batted or thrown ball remaining behind or under canvas or in cylinder: 2 Bases.
- Ball striking bevel on the wall between the foul pole in left field and the corner back of the flag pole, and bounding into stands or out of park: 2 Bases.
- Ball striking top of scoreboard, also ladder below top of wall and bounding out of the park: 2 Bases.

IF YOU COULD TAKE YOUR
PUT IT ANYWHERE
YOU WANT,
ANY SIZE,
ON ANY WALL,

YOU'D DISCOVER
THE MIRACLE OF LIQUID CRYSTAL
SHARPVISION.

SharpVision. The amazing experience of big-screen entertainment that's designed especially for your home.

The miracle of liquid crystal display technology creates a brilliant, crystal-clear SharpVision picture that adjusts to fit any wall of any room in any home. Plug in any video source (a VCR, laser disc player, camcorder, even a video game), connect your audio system, and you have easily created a true home theatre.

MODEL
XV-100

But unlike all those big-screen TVs, there's no bulky cabinet to contend with. No delicate picture adjustments to make. And there's no loss of brightness when viewing from an angle. Imagine: a vivid, permanently-aligned video picture 20, 40, 60, 80 or even 100 inches, depending on the size of your room, from a projector small enough to be stored away when not in use.

And for the ultimate in "out-of-sight" installations, SharpVision is now available in a ceiling-mounted projection unit.

That's the miracle of Liquid Crystal SharpVision.

To find out where you can experience it for yourself, call today: 1-800-BE-SHARP.

next year." He didn't smile and went to work at making it wait till next month, which is just about what happened.

"That's the kind of thing that makes him what he is," said Jeff Gray, Reardon's setup man, "He could've gone home, rested up, collected his paycheck and nobody would have thought any less of him. But he couldn't do that. All he could think of was that we were in a pennant race and he had to get back and help."

Maybe even more important is Reardon's emotional toughness, a trait every good stopper must have in a no-margin-for-error job.

"You've got to want to be out there in that situation. You can't be afraid to lose a game, because no matter how good you are, you're gonna lose some, and those are the ones people remember. Like this year, no matter how many I save, more than anything else I'll hear about Mel Hall."

Hall's ninth-inning homer at Yankee Stadium earlier this year won a game for New York and lost it for Reardon. Next day, he was back in the bullpen ready for more, back in pursuit of Fingers, still on the trail of save No. 400.

Just call him The Adjuster.

Quintana and Rivera

by Dr. Alberto Méndez

LUIS RIVERA

CARLOS QUINTANA

"Luis Rivera and Carlos Quintana are key players for our Boston organization," says Tony Peña, the catcher from the Dominican Republic who together with Rivera, Quintana and Tony Fossas constitute the foursome of Hispanic players with the Red Sox this season.

"I wonder what would have happened in 1990 if the club had not had Luis' valuable contributions. This year he has truly earned his position as our shortstop. Carlos, on the other hand, for the last two seasons has been one of our most consistent batters and has played excellent defense at first base," added Peña with a slight touch of Hispanic pride.

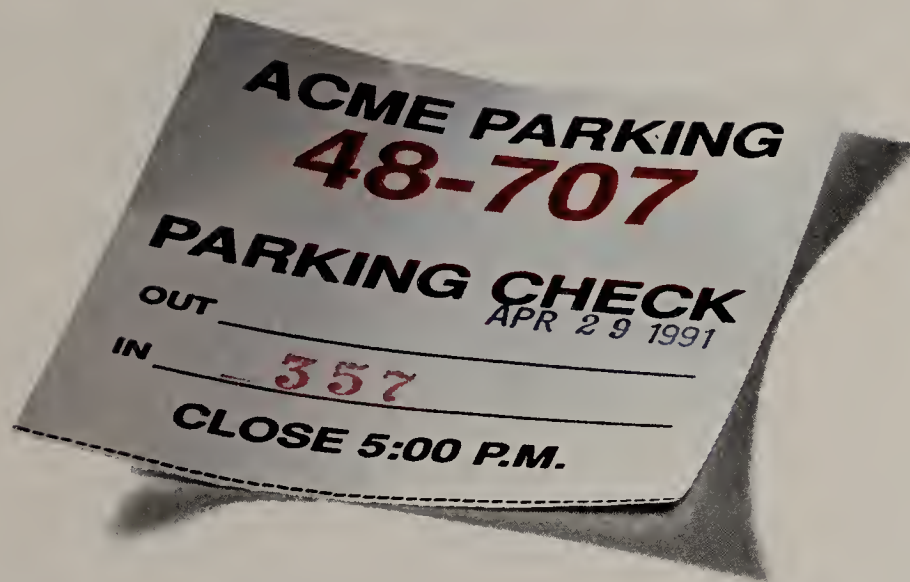

Rivera, a 27-year-old native of Cidra (Puerto Rico), feels that his arrival in Boston via the Montreal Expos in December 1988 has been a dream come true and is very proud to have played in Boston with Peña and other future Hall of Famers like Roger Clemens, Wade Boggs and Dwight Evans.

Last year the Puerto Rican shortstop did not start the season until May and had a career high of 45 RBI (17 with 2 outs) in 346 times at bat during 118 games.

"My main contributions were important runs that I batted in at crucial moments for the team," said Rivera, who in his last 49 games in 1990 (starting July 29) hit .326 (15-46) with runners in scoring positions and had a team-high .600 in 10 plate appearances with the bases loaded (6-10, 1 2B, 1 HR, 12 RBI). He also had a team-high 12 sacrifice bunts in 16 tries.

This year Rivera has vowed to improve last season's performance, and one week after the All-Star break was batting .296 (fourth among the regulars) with 5 HRs, 37 runs and 24 RBI in 196 times at bat.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL IBM is an official sponsor of Major League Baseball

Even if it's gone,
it won't be forgotten.

Statistics have always been a big part of baseball. They not only sum up all the action on the field, they influence the strategy leading up to it.

That's why everything that happens in this and every other Major League Baseball game is being fed into an IBM PS/2® computer. Which can record, analyze and retrieve information with incredible speed and accuracy.

And the IBM PS/2

computer that's keeping the records at this game is teamed up with IBM computers at Major League Baseball Headquarters.

Result: thousands of stats are now available to teams, press and fans faster than ever before.

At IBM, we've helped Major League Baseball connect high technology with the high drive to deep left that's going... going...

How're you going to do it?

A Ralph Kiner (3), B Bob Lemon (11), C Bill Terry (6), D Ted Lyons (9), E Luke Appling (15), F Hughie Jennings (16), G Cy Young (7), H Christy Mathewson (1), J Walter Johnson (14), L Herb Pennock (5), M Jimmie Foxx (12), Chuck Klein (2).

2-3 record in 39 innings spread over eight games in 1969.

Brett went 8-9 and 0-3 in his next two seasons with the Red Sox before being traded along with long-time friend Jim Lonborg to the Brewers after the 1971 season.

He and Lonborg moved on to the Phils in another trade after the 1972 season, a deal he discussed with the South Shore dentist when they had dinner together during his first visit to Fenway during the current season.

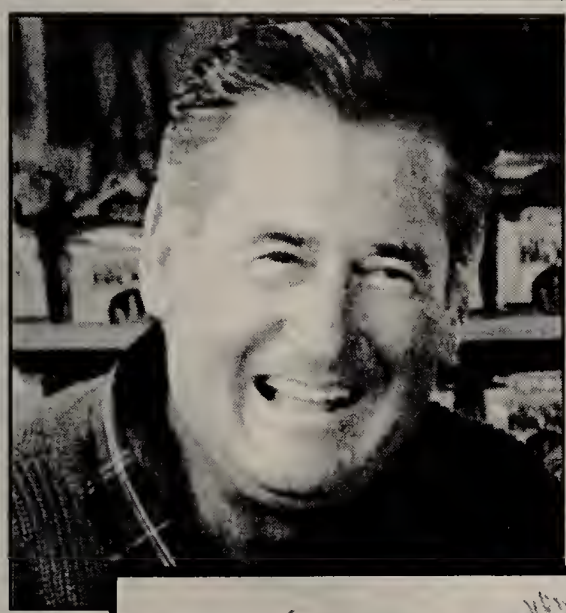

Some of baseball's better known players and a few prime characters were included in the several trades involving Brett in his travels over the years. George "Boomer" Scott, Marty Pattin, Tommy Harper, Don Money, John Vukovich, Dave Cash, Willie Randolph, Doc Medich and Carlos May were among those moving around the big leagues in Brett transactions.

"I consider myself fortunate for my experiences in baseball. I met and played with a lot of great people. I got to pitch in a World Series at a very early age, and I own an All-Star Game victory and the ring that goes with it."

"And I like what I'm doing now. We have a good Angels ball club, and I don't have to fight that traffic every day."

Brett and his wife, Teresa, reside in Manhattan Beach, California with their young twins, son Casey and daughter Sheridan.

And, as he says, "I consider myself pretty fortunate."

Big League Taste

I know what it takes to play in the big leagues ...dedication and a commitment to excellence, and so do the folks at Nissen's. I've enjoyed the consistent homestyle goodness of J.J. Nissen baked goods for years ... and so will you!

ON THE AIR

In addition, Sean has been a studio host for the Red Sox on NESN, the Bruins on TV-38, and the Patriots on WHDH radio. The South Boston native is a graduate of Syracuse University. He began his broadcasting career with the Syracuse Chiefs of the International League (1982-84).

Montgomery has been on the TV-38 crew for 10 seasons. He was a valuable reserve catcher for the Red Sox during his 10-year major league career. He signed with Boston in 1962 and came to the majors in 1970. He played in 387 games, including 62 for the 1975 A.L. pennant winners, before an arm injury forced his retirement during spring training in 1980.

Monty did a local radio talk show, as well as some work on Red Sox radio broadcasts, prior to joining the TV-38 team in 1982. He also announced the Red Sox on NESN for three seasons (1985-87).

NESN is covering the Red Sox for the eighth year, with Ned Martin and Jerry Remy teaming together for the fourth season.

Martin has been announcing Red Sox games on TV and radio for 31 consecutive seasons, including the past seven with NESN. He began his career in Charleston, West Virginia, covering the American Association team there for five years. He joined Curt Gowdy in the Red Sox booth for the 1961 season and has been there ever since, working with 11 different partners in that time.

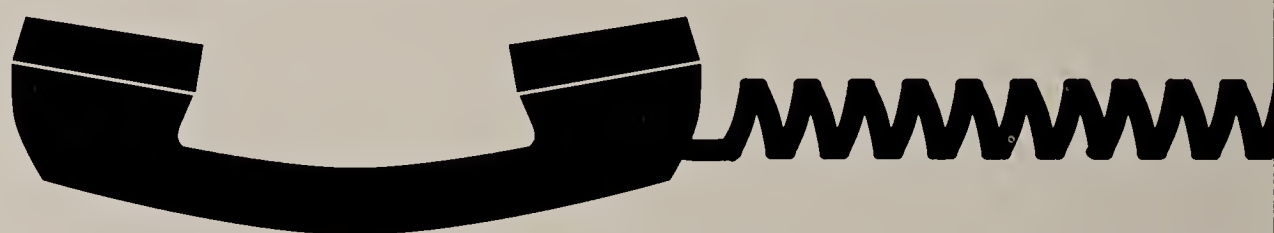

Ned has announced the A.L. playoffs on CBS radio four times, and also did the 1975 World Series on television for NBC. The Duke graduate is also an accomplished football announcer, having done play-by-play for the Patriots (1965), Dartmouth (7 years), Harvard (6 years), and Yale (2 years).

Remy, a popular player during his career in Boston, is in his fourth year in the NESN booth. His playing days were cut short by a knee injury, which forced his retirement during spring training in 1986.

The Fall River, Mass., native broke into the majors with the Angels in 1975 and was traded to the Red Sox prior to the 1978 season. He was the club's regular second baseman until the early part of 1984, when a serious knee injury effectively ended his career. He stole at least 30 bases in each of his first four major league seasons and hit over .300 twice (1980 & 1981). In all, he played in 1,154 major league games with a .275 average. He was an All-State second baseman for Somerset High School in 1970.

For the convenience of its viewers, NESN rebroadcasts each of its games (usually that night at 11:00 and 9:00 a.m. the next day). NESN also offers Red Sox Digest, a 30-minute pre-game show, and Red Sox Weekly, a review of all the action from the previous week.

THE ONLY THING BETWEEN YOU AND A BIG LEAGUE RETIREMENT

Most Americans, even those making major league salaries, won't have the retirement income to maintain their current lifestyles. Their company pension plans and social security won't cut it.

But now, The Phoenix, one of the nation's premier insurance companies, has designed a new retirement program that not only keeps you in the game, but also gives you a fair shot at those college expenses, unexpected medical bills, or even a nest egg to start your own business.

Through smart planning, innovative thinking and wise investing, The Phoenix has been building fruitful retirements for over 60 years. Call one of our agencies today, and learn how The Phoenix can make your retirement a cut above the rest.

1. Even when he wasn't in the batter's box Williams cast his steely gaze towards the pitcher watching every move. Here he is shown in the indoor batting cage at Tufts University in a classic pose captured by his friend and Boston Herald ace photographer Leslie R. Jones. (Leslie R. Jones photograph, courtesy of the Jones Family)
2. Writers often cringed at the prospect of interviewing the mercurial Williams. Ironically he was least approachable after his best performances. This photograph captures the near volcanic power of his anger. (Courtesy of Brian Interland)
3. Captain Ted Williams sits in the cockpit of an F-9F Panther jet at Cherry Point, North Carolina, while training for combat duty in Korea. After completing 39 missions, including his famous crash landing, Williams was awarded two Gold Stars and an Air Medal before receiving his discharge for health reasons. (Courtesy of the San Diego Hall of Champions)

"Let's stay to see Ted bat just one more time." Due to the slugger's unpredictable nature you never knew whether you'd see him hit into the teeth of the Boudreau shift, lace a picture perfect, line drive base hit to right field or launch an arcing homer into the visiting team bullpen. His every at-bat was a game within the game, a battle of wits and timing which began long before the start of the game as he'd corral teammates in hotel lobbies and clubhouses and quiz them about opposing pitchers. It was this obsessive nature combined with physical talent honed by a dogged work ethic which made Williams the best. His achievements comprise the daunting standard by which all subsequent hitters are judged.

It is safe to say that the many feats Williams accomplished in real life were the stuff that John Wayne could only dream of achieving on the back lot at Paramount Pictures, or that Ernest Hemingway only imagined while sitting behind his Underwood staring at a sheet of blank paper.

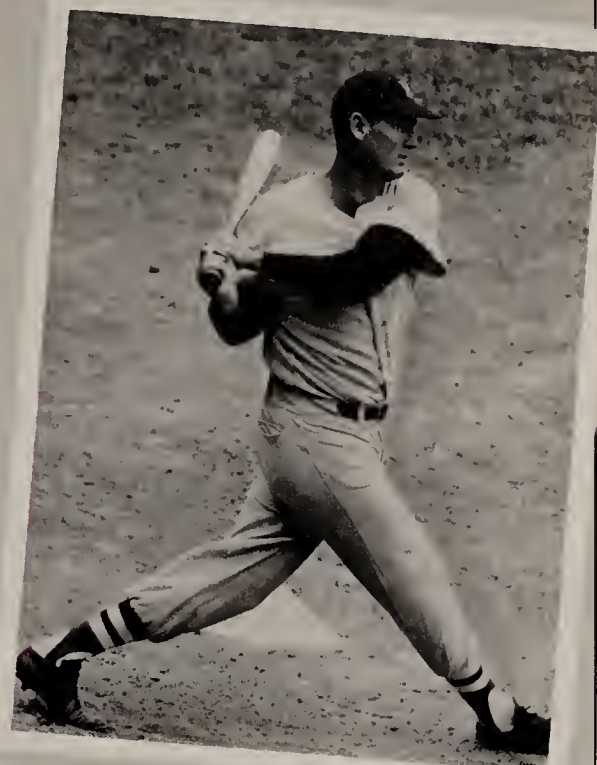

In this, the 50th anniversary of Williams' magnificent .406 season, numerous tributes have been paid to number nine, including the publication of Ted Williams, A Portrait in Words and Pictures, from which this scrapbook of photographs has been

4. Red Sox owner and fellow Hall of Famer Tom Yawkey shared a special relationship with Williams. 5. In 1957 at age 39 Williams enjoyed perhaps his greatest season winning the batting championship with a .388 average. In many regards this season was better than his legendary 1941 campaign due to the fact that age cost him several infield "leg hits," and he was hitting in a less potent lineup than that fielded in 1941. 6. The greatest hitter of baseball's dead ball era meets baseball's greatest modern day hitter as Ty Cobb visits Williams at the Red Sox spring training camp at Scottsdale, Arizona. Both men shared similar attitudes towards competition and excellence and had tremendous respect for one another. Cobb was one of the few people who could engage Williams on equal terms in a discussion of hitting mechanics and technique. (Courtesy of the Red Sox)

Quintana - Rivera

Like last year, in 1991 Rivera did not start the season, but his philosophy of "being ready to play at all times" paid off when Tim Lincecum was sidelined with a recurring back injury.

Rivera also got hurt on May 30 when he jammed his left shoulder while diving head-first into first base in a game against the Orioles. Playing with pain probably has been a factor in some of Rivera's errors, but he simply refuses to use the injury as an excuse.

Rivera and Quintana are proud Latins and family men who share work ethics based on perseverance, hard discipline, daily practice, continuous improvement and getting their jobs done quietly. In addition, both believe that fans at Fenway Park are extremely demanding, but fair.

"The fans in Boston want you to play at your hardest and always expect a good show," says Quintana. "But if you play with heart and leave on the field everything you have, they recognize your efforts and give you their support. That's why I get along with them just fine," adds the man known to Fenway aficionados as "The Q," or "The Big Q," nicknames which are very dear to Quintana.

Carlos "The Q" was born 25 years ago in a small cacao and banana farm in Mamporal, Estado de Miranda, Venezuela. After successfully playing with the Venezuelan National Team, he was recruited by a professional team in Maracaibo when he was merely 17 years old.

According to Quintana, baseball in Venezuela is highly competitive and somewhat comparable with the Major Leagues in the United States. Growing up in his native country, Quintana was a great admirer of Rod Carew and Reggie Jackson, but his main heroes were always fellow countrymen, Davey Concepcion and a trio of stars that at some time in their careers also played for the Red Sox: the late Bo Diaz, Luis Aparicio and Tony Armas.

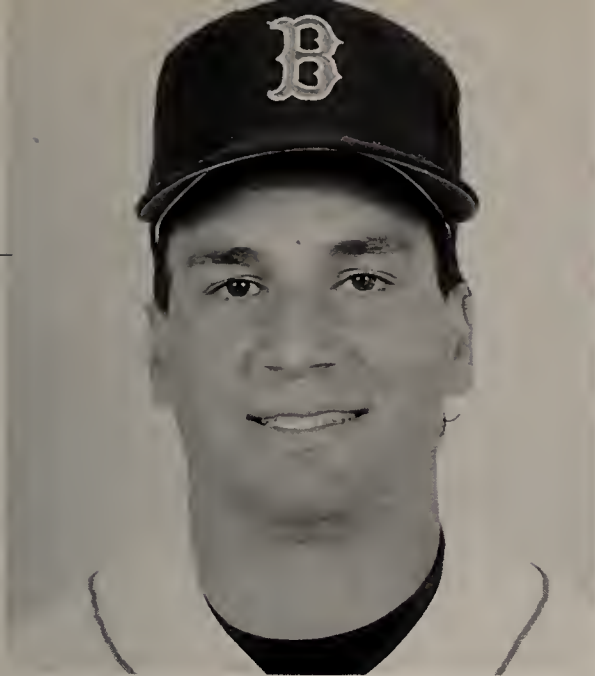

"I have always admired those great players, and I try to play as hard and well as they did," says Quintana, who in turn at the present time is probably inspiring many youngsters in his native Venezuela, where he is becoming a very popular sports figure.

After signing with Boston in 1984, the quiet Venezuelan started an ascending career in the minors that lead to 1990 being his first complete year in the M.L. As a rookie Quintana not only switched successfully from outfielder to first baseman, but he also impressed managers and fans with the steadiness of his bat (.287 with 67 RBI in 118 games).

In the first half of the 1991 season, Quintana was one of the top three most consistent batters, and his average stayed above or around .300. At the All-Star break he had reasons to be proud of his 79 hits, 36 runs and 32 RBI in 258 times at bat.

Quintana is thankful to multiple Gold Glove winner and All-Star Tony Peña for his help during his two years with the Red Sox, but recognizes former Minnesota star Cesar Tovar as the main influence in his professional life. Quintana credits Tovar for the development of his characteristic opposite-field style and much more.

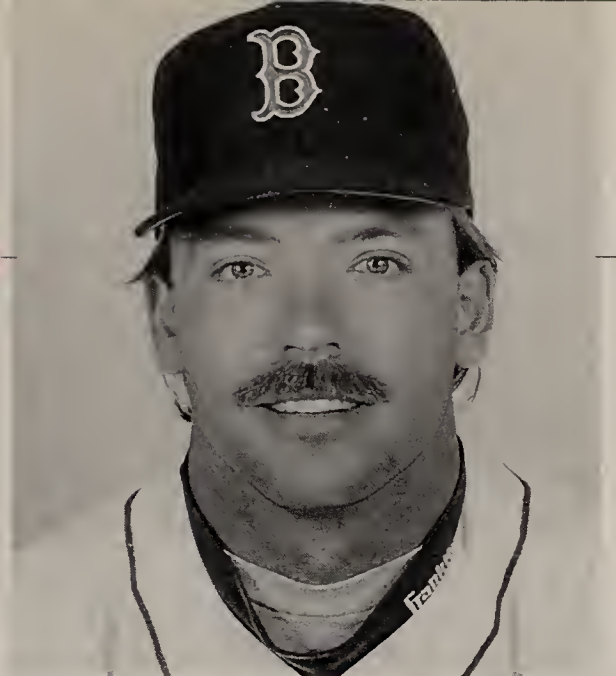

"Cesar was my coach in Venezuela, and since then we have been very close and always keep in touch. I call him on the phone almost every week,

RED SOX WITH THE FANS AND IN THE COMMUNITY

The third annual "Family Inn Night at Fenway Park" was held June 20. Prior to the game between the Red Sox and A's, Red Sox players and wives, management, Family Inn supporters and the Fiske family gathered in the Diamond At Fenway for award presentations and a buffet dinner. The Family Inn was instituted in 1984 by Charles and Marilyn Fiske whose infant daughter, Jamie, underwent successful liver transplant surgery in 1983. Formerly a Victorian home in Brookline, MA, the Inn is used as a temporary home for families of patients undergoing transplant surgery in Boston-area hospitals. Mrs. Jean Yawkey, a continued supporter of the Family Inn, was most instrumental in its founding.

The Fiskes pose with Joe Morgan, recipient of an award citing his ongoing support of The Family Inn.

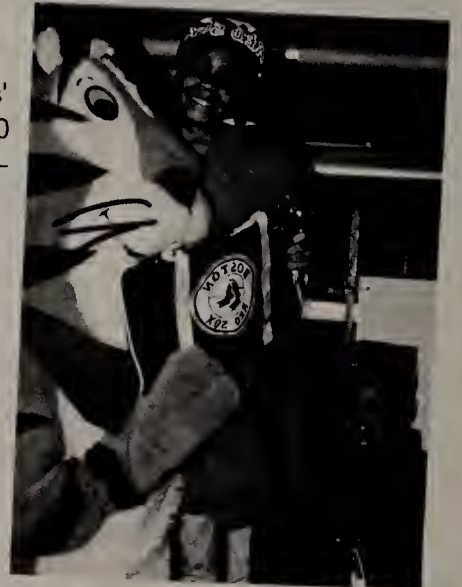

Steve Lyons stopped by the Diamond At Fenway and shared a laugh with master of ceremonies Joe Castiglione.

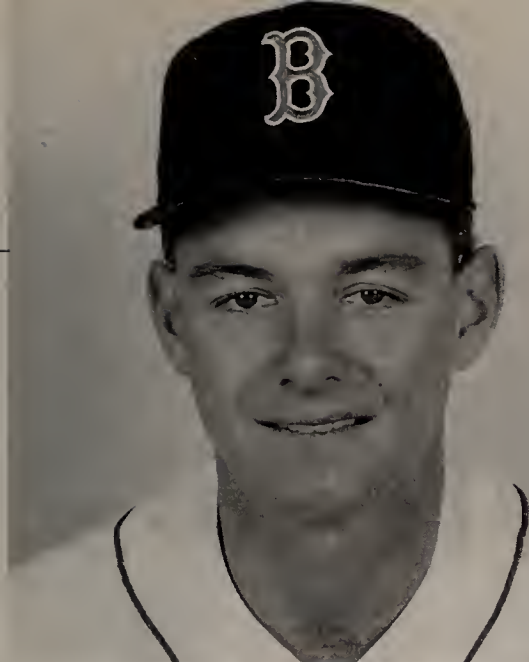

Two young fans pose with Tony The Tiger during Kids' Opening Day at Fenway on April 13. The first 15,000 fans age 15 and under, received a sports bag, compliments of Kellogg, upon entering the park.

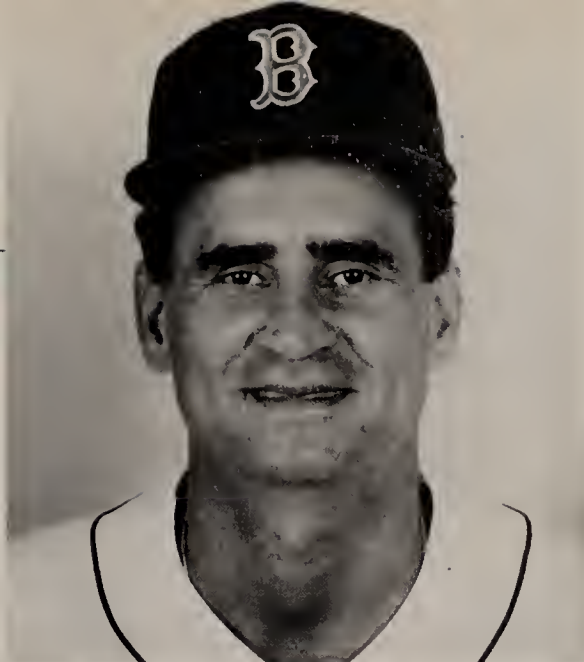

A happy fan receives a Boston Red Sox cap, compliments of Citgo Petroleum prior to the May 30th Red Sox-Orioles game.

Several Red Sox who were participants in the "Sox Talk" program last summer were honored before the game of June 18 between the Red Sox and Mariners. Honorees were: Dick Berardino, Tom Brunansky, Al Bumbry, Ellis Burks, Jeff Gray, Dana Kiecker, Dennis Lamp, John Marzano, Joe Morgan, Rob Murphy (with Mariners), Tim Naehring, Tony Pena and Jody Reed. Sox Talk is a joint venture between the Red Sox and Boston's Parks and Recreation Department in which players and coaches visit neighborhood parks instructing and advising inner-city youth.

This season, IBM applauds some local teams with very impressive records.

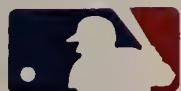

Some of this year's most impressive records don't belong to players on the field. They belong to 26,000 very special kids.

Because of their outstanding efforts in the classroom and in the community, they've been chosen by their teachers as winners of IBM's Student Pennant Race.

To recognize their achievements, IBM and each of the 26 Major League Baseball teams are taking 1,000 students, each with a guest, out to the ballgame.

While munching popcorn and hot dogs, the kids will also enjoy IBM's Tale of the Tape™—where we tell fans of 19 participating major league teams how far every home team home run is hit. At the end of the season, IBM will donate $10,000 to local charities in these teams' cities, in the names of the three players who hit the longest home runs.

The Student Pennant Race and the Tale of the Tape are two ways that IBM and the home teams are working for the hometowns.

and he always watches my games on TV. He then tells me how to improve my batting and helps me with my fielding. But above all, he has always been a coach for my mind and my conscience. He has taught me how to focus on baseball and keep my mind in every game and in each play. Cesar has been for me like a second father. He is a beautiful person whom I respect and appreciate immensely."

Boston fans and members of the media have learned to respect the high level of professionalism showed by Quintana, but his problems with the English language have prevented him from effectively communicating his ideas and feelings. The Spanish-speaking public, on the other hand, has always appreciated the strong moral stands and thoughts of a baseball star whose main efforts off the field are directed to help the less fortunate.

CARLOS QUINTANA

"One of my main goals in life is helping the people in need. I love to talk with children and advise them about staying out of trouble and going to school to improve the quality of their lives," says Quintana.

Carlos always keeps a tiny flag from his native Venezuela hanging from the top of his locker and feels proud of being a representative of his country in the United States, but he is also working hard on improving his English and adapting himself completely to the American culture.

"Learning English has been hard for me, but I continue trying." He has a series of language cassettes that he listens to at home or on the road whenever he has the opportunity. He also is an avid reader of newspapers and has increased his efforts to communicate with his English-speaking teammates and members of the media.

Although Quintana is sincere in his efforts to adapt himself to the American culture, he realizes that "deep in his heart" he will continue to be loyal to his Latin heritage which includes a true sense of religious values. Quintana credits his wife, a devout Catholic, for inspiring faith and hope in their family life.

"God has helped me a lot during my professional career," says Quintana. Tony Fossas goes a step further: "God made the decision for me to play for the Red Sox."

But when Fossas wants to describe the roles that Rivera and Quintana play with the Red Sox he has a favorite metaphor: "Each team is like a jigsaw puzzle, and the 25 players are important pieces that must fit precisely. If they don't, the team does not win. In my view, Luis and Carlos fit."

Dr. Alberto Méndez writes for the Boston area weekly Spanish newspaper EL MUNDO and is a sports commentator for WRCA 1330 - AM. He is also a professor of Hispanic Culture at Suffolk University.
